Solar Ready Vets is a U.S. Department of Energy SunShot Initiative program that connects transitioning military personnel with solar training and employment opportunities. It is led by The Solar Foundation, an independent nonprofit organization with a reputation for excellence in solar jobs research and workforce development.

Solar Ready Vets provides quality training and hands-on experience in solar energy to interested transitioning military personnel who are within six months of separation.

Solar training complements the extensive skills developed during military service and prepares transitioning service members to be strong candidates for jobs in the growing solar industry.

Solar Ready Vets is currently working with 10 military bases nationwide. The Solar Foundation is actively recruiting employer partners to participate in the Solar Ready Vets program. For employers, the program will increase the quality and diversity of the solar workforce and create a dedicated employment pipeline.
